

The density supplies the weights. Bars divide total variance within each population; equal bar lengths do not imply equal total variance. All panels use the same axes.